Our departure was
a time of anticipation and uncertainty.

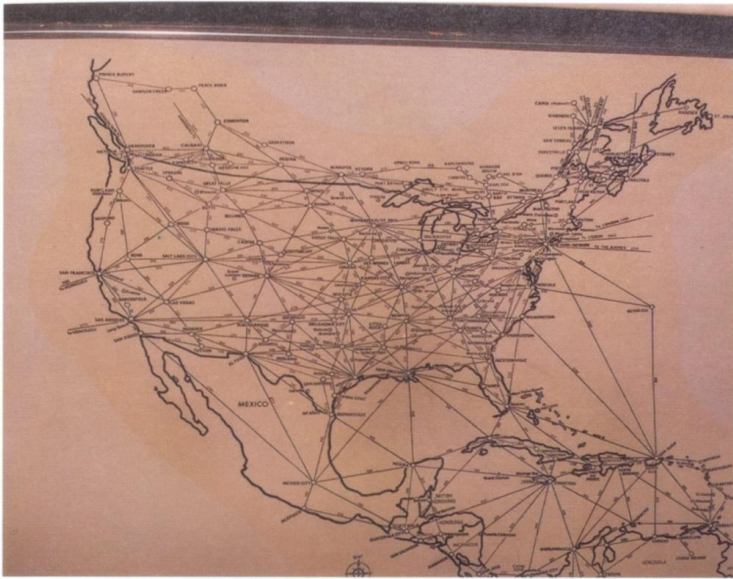

Many of us shared goals
and destinations which were achieved through teamwork,

— yet we all had charted the directions to our separate horizons, which could only be reached by uniting our individual strengths and talents.

As we climbed to greater altitudes many important choices and decisions confronted us.

Never out of range, ground control was able to relay the needed knowledge . . .

to carry us forward.

During times
of smooth travel
we were able to relax,
move about,
and develop some
lasting friendships.

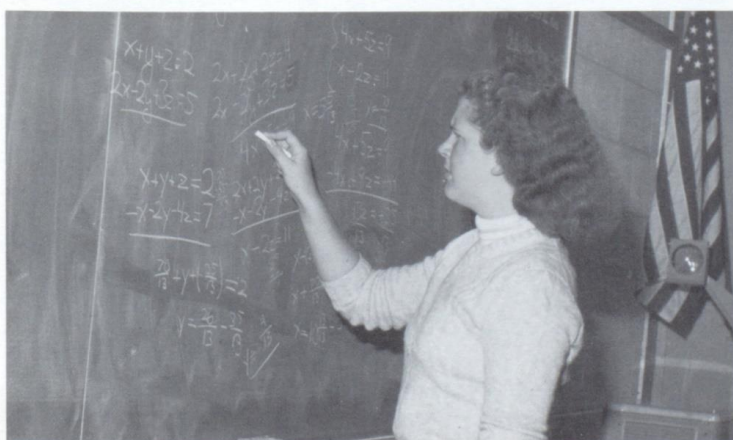

However, there were times when turbulence often hindered our progress.

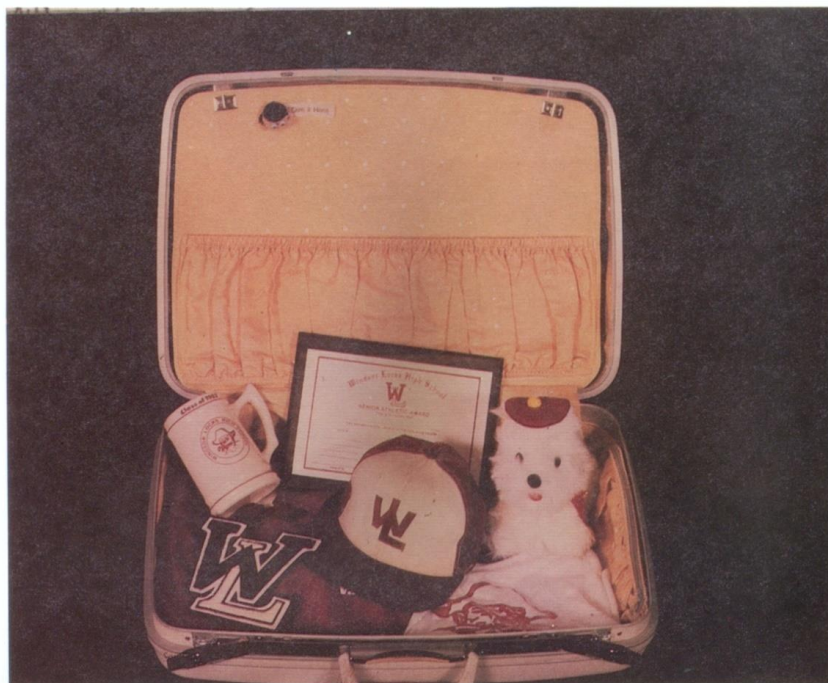

Though these obstacles often seemed insurmountable . . .

. . . the efforts and persistence of our crew enabled us to regain a steady course.

7

Our journey
complete, we gathered our belongings
content with the memories of where we have been

and eager to meet the challenge of the next horizon.

One journey has come to its end, yet another is just beginning.

With our destination in sight, we look back and realize that he has guided us well. His understanding and friendship have made our trip that much more enjoyable. For this, we, the class of 1982, dedicate the HERALD to

Mr. Frank Borchetta

TRIP

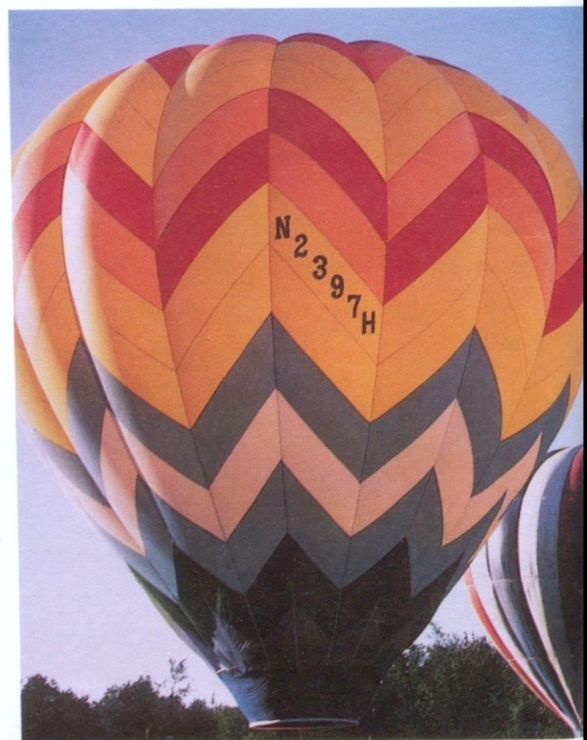

With numerous opportunities now available to us, we must search for the paths that will lead us to our individual goals. We may have to start off slowly because of the unfamiliar atmosphere; but, with time, we will gain momentum.

Once we determine a suitable course, our flight will become steady and meaningful. Although our future flights will differ, they will all have one common ingredient: careful planning.

May we all have the patience and commitment to successfully fulfill our dreams.
